

ABSTRACT

An infection-blocking dental implant in which a threaded portion which contacts bone is roughened except for up to three threads which may be exposed by bone recession after implantation, which have a smooth surface . Preferably, the implant is of titanium or titanium alloy and the threaded portion is roughened by a two-step acid treatment.